

Environmental Protection Act 1990: Part 2A Barnsley Metropolitan Borough Council Contaminated Land Register

The regime for the identification and remediation of contaminated land is laid out in Part 2A of the Environmental Protection Act 1990.

The primary regulatory role rests with local authorities such as Barnsley Metropolitan Borough Council. As an enforcing authority the Council is required to inspect its area and determine whether any land is "Contaminated Land" as defined in the legislation. Local authorities have been given powers to ensure the remediation of any sites determined to be contaminated land.

The Council has a duty (under section 78R(1)) to maintain a Register which includes details of remediation notices served and other documents in relation to each area of contaminated land for which the authority is responsible.

The particular details to be included in the register are prescribed in Regulation 13 of, and Schedule 3 to, the Contaminated Land (England) Regulations 2006. This will detail the location and extent of contaminated land in the Borough and can include:

- remediation notices and appeals against such notices;
- remediation statements and declarations;
- appeals against charging notices;
- notices relating to the designation of land as a special site;
- guidance issued by the Environment Agency;
- information where a site is formally identified as contaminated land but is dealt with under other legislation;
- site details, and
- details from the Environment Agency regarding the regulation of Special Sites.

The Council is under a duty to keep its Register available for free inspection by the public at all reasonable times (Section 78R(8)(a)). In addition, it is under a duty to provide facilities for members of the public to obtain copies of register entries, for which it can make a reasonable charge (section 78R(8)(b)).

Before including any information on its register the enforcing authority needs to consider whether the information should be excluded on the basis that:

- it's inclusion would be against the interest of national security; or
- the information is commercially confidential.

For full details of the information required to be kept in the register, and the grounds for exclusion, the relevant legislation and guidance should be consulted.
