

Your support

while waiting for an

Autism Assessment

You should not wait for an Autism Assessment to access support for your needs.

You can find out about the available support on the Local Offer.

A diagnosis is often not required to access support

Depending on your needs, help can come from professionals, charities, local authorities as well as family and friends.

Peer support from others who are waiting for or have an Autism diagnosis may also help you.

You can request the support you need yourself.

What is Early Help?

There are lots of reasons why people look for Early Help.

If you are waiting for an Autism assessment, you may already be benefiting from having Early Help support and are likely to have an Early Help Assessment in place.

Early Help support is available for families with children and young people of all ages. You can ask for Early Help from any practitioner working with your family.

The Local Offer

The Local Offer provides a list of the support options you can access while waiting for an assessment. You are not alone in this. There are people and organisations ready to help.

What is an Early Help Assessment?

An Early Help Assessment is a conversation to understand what is going well, anything you are worried about and how to help you and your family. Together you'll agree what to write down so there is a record of what you talked about and make a plan about what happens next.

An Early Help Assessment helps others understand your needs and avoids you having to tell your story more than once.

Whilst you are waiting for an Autism Assessment, Early Help can give you the tools to overcome challenges you and your family are experiencing with help from others where needed

If you have an open Early Help Assessment, your Early Help Assessment Lead can help you navigate the available support and services while waiting for an Autism assessment.

If your Early Help Assessment has been closed, you can ask for it to reopened if you feel there is further support you need. If you do not know who your Early Help Assessment Lead is or do not have an Early Help Assessment open you can ask a professional involved with your family such as your education setting, health practitioner or visit your local Family Hub.

Your Early Help Assessment Lead will talk with you about the challenges you're experiencing. They will ask you what help and support you think you might need and support you to access this which includes everyone in your family network. They may also suggest completing or updating your existing early help assessment.

The following pages contain details of the support and services that may be able to help you whilst you are waiting for an Autism Assessment.

More information regarding all these services can be found on the Local Offer - www.barnsley.gov.uk/LocalOffer

Service

Service Overview

Family Hubs Barnsley Family Hubs brings together a range of services so you can access the right support across our communities. They support families from thinking about having a baby, through pregnancy, through early years up to the age of 19 or 25 for young people with special educational needs and disabilities.

Barnsley Family Hubs can support you with:

- ✓ Becoming a parent
- ✓ Parenting and Co-parenting
- ✓ Understanding family relationships
- ✓ Mental health and wellbeing
- √ Signposting to services who can help
- ✓ Knowing what groups and activities are available for families to enjoy

The Hubs offer support to parents and carers of children and young people with additional needs, including sleep support and the Building Bonds Sharing Strength support group.

There are seven Family Hubs across Barnsley.

Service Overview

Barnsley Education Inclusion Services

Barnsley Education Inclusion Specialist Support

Services include Educational Psychology, Portage, Social Communication and Interaction (SCI), Hearing Support and Vision Support Services. You can find information about all these services via the Local Offer.

The Social Communication and Interaction (SCI) Service

specifically offer support for needs related to Autism. The service includes specialist teachers and support workers who help children and young people with social communication and interaction needs. SCI practitioners work with education settings to support staff to identify, understand and meet the needs of children with SCI needs. This is done through training and consultation with education settings and parents/carers.

The Barnsley Portage Service work with children who have been assessed by professionals as having significant developmental delay. Delay in development could be in any area including communication and language.

We work with parents/carers to provide home-based development and learning support for children aged 0-4 years who are not yet in nursery or school.

Targeted Youth Support Service

Barnsley's Targeted Youth Support Service provides targeted service for children and young people aged 8-24 with SEND and their siblings.

We aim to provide children and young people with support to explore issues and areas that can affect them as part of adolescence and growing independence. We help to promote the personal and social development of young people, helping them to make a positive transition to adulthood whilst being able to socialise with their peers.
